What's Trending

The U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) has finalized its new Data Security Program through Executive Order 14117, aimed at safeguarding sensitive personal and government-related data. To be able to conduct certain “restricted” transactions under the rule, U.S. entities need to have an external auditor certify compliance with security requirements developed by the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA). The initial compliance deadline was April 8, 2025, but additional requirements will take effect on October 6, 2025. FTI Cybersecurity helps organizations mitigate national security data risks to achieve compliance with the Data Security Program. Learn More >>

Service Spotlight

Why It Matters:

The rise and commoditization of AI and deepfake technology poses a growing risk of fraud, financial damage, and reputational harm to enterprises and high-profile individuals alike. Deepfakes and manipulated content are capable of quickly eroding trust through their appearance of legitimacy and the velocity with which they spread online.

How FTI Cybersecurity Can Help:

FTI Cybersecurity conducts forensic investigations to detect and assess manipulated content, provides crisis response in the event of a breach enabled by synthetic content, and offers solutions that build resilience against digital deception. This includes:

- Technical Analysis
- Expert Reviews & Investigations
- Preparation for Litigation

Case Study:

FTI Cybersecurity advised the head of a foreign entity targeted by a years-long disinformation campaign. Our team conducted open-source intelligence gathering across dozens of entities and identified multiple disinformation tactics, including illegitimate lawsuits, forged documents, and using legal filings to spread falsehoods. We crafted a multi-year response strategy, incorporating evidence in counter-litigation, impact analysis for legal proceedings, and a global monitoring workstream to quickly identify and mitigate future attacks.
