Service Spotlight

National Security Risk Assessment

Why It Matters:

Multinational companies and foreign governments are operating in an increasingly unpredictable geopolitical landscape. To stay ahead of potential threats to operations, reputation, and financial performance, organizations need to regularly evaluate and assess risks. Conducting risk assessments helps leaders identify vulnerabilities, anticipate changes in the global environment, and make strategic decisions that protect enterprise value and maintain a competitive edge.

How FTI Cybersecurity Can Help:

We help organizations conduct risk assessments using a customized approach that identifies exposures and geopolitical threats specific to their operations. Our team delivers actionable insights, risk mitigation plans, and performance-enhancing strategies. Through a collaborative, customized approach, we focus on what matters most to the organization and align our efforts with goals and priorities.

Case Study:

FTI Cybersecurity was engaged by a US-based genetic research company to examine the outbound network characteristics of its DNA sequencing equipment. FTI Cybersecurity experts conducted an analysis that included network monitoring, software code review, operating system vulnerability assessments, and hardware schematic review. Our team also created a temporary, private internal network to conduct vulnerability assessments of each operating system in use and to review code for potential leaks. FTI Cybersecurity determined that the sequencing equipment made connections to several overseas Internet Protocol (IP) addresses. After additional network testing of the software approved for US customers, it was verified that the approved US version did not connect to the company's foreign headquarters.
